Shut Down for Day While Repairs Are Made.

FRANKLIN, Ky., Aug. 19.—What amount of road repairs can be accomplished in one day with 5,000 abiebodied men on the job?

The answer to this question will be given late in September, when every business house in Franklin, with the exception of the post office will close doors and all employees, as well as members of firms, will join forces with the farmers to make passable the roads of Simpson county during the winter months.

The State is watching the project and her official family. Once or twice she took a drive through the city with the leopard on her lap. Back in 1914 she had ambition to be the first woman to reach the North Pole and spoke much of organizing an expedition, but the plan fell through.

In 1915 she had another narrow excepe from the jaws of a lion in East Africa after she had killed seven of them in one week. "This lion nearly finished me before I got him, and severely clawed one of my gun carriers, "Itagy" MacKenzie said in telling of this adventure. "I had killed his mate with my last shot when he suddenly appeared out of the brush and charged before could reload. He knocked me down and jumped over my head, landing on one of my native attendants. I regained my feet in a hurry, and, leading, finished the brush and charged before could reload. House Majority Leader and November Result Seen Test of Kendrick Unopposed for Rival Senatorial Nominations.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 19.—With United States Senator John B. Kendrics and House Majority Leader Frank W. ndell unopposed for the Senatorial campaign, interest in the Wyoming pri-

Contests for Governorship.

Two weeks later the more conservative Democrats, viewing with evident alarm the possibility of their being booked up with the Non-Partisan League, induced W. B. Ross, Cheyenne attorney and the unsuccessful candidate four years ago for the same position, to enter the race once more. Then whatever chances Kindler may have had of defeating Ross probably were spoiled by the last minute entrance of McDowell, the man whose candidacy was spurned by the conference at the behest of the 9.75; by the conference at the behest of the the man whose candidacy was spurned by the conference at the behest of the Democrats, but who still had back of him the Non-Partisan League.

As the situation stands to-day Ross is the strong favorite. The so-called radicals are divided between Kindler and McDowell, and the effort of the leaguers to capture and swallow up the minority party apparently is a failure.

In the Republican race for the nomination for Wyoming's seat in the lower house of Congress Marshall S. Reynolds, internal revenue collector for this district, and Charles E. Winter, former district, and Charles E. Winter, former district, udge and one time nominee of the Progressive party for the House, are running neck and neck, with the opinion about equally divided as to who will nose out ahead. Reynolds has the support of a large part of the "organization," while Winter is making his appeal largely to those men and women who count themselves among the more forward looking members of the party.

Issues in Jumble.

Issues in Jumble.

Among the three Democratic entrants Robert R. Rose, editor and attorney, indorsed by the Conference for Progressive Political Action, seems to have a walk-away. The two others, James H. Camp and Charles O. Richardson, are not taken seriously.

The Non-Partisan League is not cutting nearly so much of a figure as its backers claimed it would, and most of the other radicals have been aligned with the Democratic party for years, so that anything they do this year will not be unusual. Unlike two years ago, when the labor people put forward a separate ticket, there will be no third party.
